

A DAY IN THE LIFE

A PERSPECTIVE ON POVERTY

JOIN US FOR AN INTERACTIVE EVENT THAT BRINGS AWARENESS ABOUT THE REALITIES OF LIVING IN POVERTY.

Every day, thousands of families across Cass and Clay Counties perform a financial balancing act while trying to make ends meet.

A Day in the Life: Perspective on Poverty

What is it?

This event is an interactive immersion experience that depicts real-life scenarios faced by many of the families living in poverty in Cass and Clay Counties who are sometimes one paycheck away from homelessness or crisis.

How does it work?

Alice is 34. She could be your neighbor, a woman you ran into at the grocery store, or someone living in your community you have never met before. Alice is fighting against many barriers just to keep a roof over her families head and food on the table. Alice is just one member of the many families that make up the experience.

During this experience, you will take on the identity of someone like Alice. You and your family will work together to sustain yourself as you live a month in poverty. You will be surrounded by a community of others experiencing their own challenges and given personal and community resources like schools, banks, and grocery stores. Throughout the month you will experience the challenges person in poverty faces.

“Today I participated in “A Day in the Life: A Perspective on Poverty”. I lived a month as a 19 year old high school dropout and single mother of a 1 year old with a live-in boyfriend. I thought making ends meet would be a simple exercise in good planning. One tiny transportation mishap later and the realities of the difficult situation started compounding. All my planning was for naught as I struggle with complexities such as not being able to pay rent until my boyfriend got home with cash or constantly running out of bus passes. Managing time and errands efficiently proved to be impossible. I ended the month in a far worse situation than I began, and we were amongst the luckiest of families in the simulation...”
